Not illustrated. 1893 Excerpt: ...of imports over exports) the net import has averaged 357,659 cwt. Of that amount Goa in 1889-90 (for example) furnished 201,934-cwt. and Kattywar 14,651 cwt. The imports from Bengal and Madras may be said to be rendered of no moment, through the exports to these provinces balancing the record. The imports from Sind are, however, considerable; in 1889-90 they came to 59347 cwt-But t need scarcely be said that these imports were to the port town of Bombay, and until evidence be obtained to the contrary it may safely be assumed the drain towards the Western capital has its existence in the foreign trade. During only three years of the fifteen here dealt with has Sind manifested a net import, vis., 1880-81, 1881-82, and 1886-87. For the past four years the average net export has been 140,089 cwt., a quantity which will be found to have sufficed to meet the markets which bind finds remunerative in Bombay port town, CuLch, and Kattywar. Having thus demonstrated the lessons that may be learned from the study of the coastwise trade with regard to the Indian traffic and consumption of wheat, attention may be turned to the records (such as they are) of the internal transactions carried by Rail, Road, and River.--It is often very difficult, in dealing with Indian trade, to obtain returns for a particular year and framed uniformly on the same plan for each route along which goods are carried and distributed. This difficulty the writer has been in the habit of combating (throughout the compilation of this work) by furnishing particulars of more than one year, so that the reader may be enabled to form a conception of the bear, ings of each section of the trade, even although it may be impossible to furnish particulars of the last year in one section of the trade though ...
